

Cameron Offices (Belconnen), 1976

The Cameron Offices are special because they were the first buildings in Canberra designed in a new and modernist way. John Andrews designed them to follow the shape of the land, like steps going up and down. The buildings are connected by walkways so people can walk safely between them, even over roads.

The Cameron Offices show two popular design styles. International style, which uses simple shapes & Brutalist style, which uses lots of concrete. These styles make the buildings look bold, solid, and modern.
